CHANGE OF NAME

At the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees in 1910, a resolution was adopted requesting the Legislature to change the name of the School from the Alabama Girls Industrial School to the Alabama Girls Technical Institute. The Legislature promptly passed the bill and the Governor approved the act February 20, 1911.

This change of name was made necessary because of the association of the name "Industrial School" with institutions of a different character and also on account of the broader field the school is now to occupy in the Educational World. The industrial training is not to be lessened, but to be greatly strengthened and extended. New courses in departments already established are to be offered, and new subjects are to be introduced. The school is indeed the great Polytechnic Institute for girls and young women.

The appropriation generously made by the Legislature will enable the authorities to erect and equip buildings that are now so sorely needed for the school to do the work for which it is designed. Every girl in the State should try to take advantage of the opportunities offered here. The lowest possible rates are maintained in order that those of very limited means may come. Arrangements are made by which a number can assist themselves in paying a part of their expenses. No one should be deterred from trying to come on account of expense. For catalogue and other information, write to the President.

The A. G. T. I. extends greetings to every girl who has an ambition to secure a thorough and well rounded education.

Below we give copies of the acts in regard to the school recently enacted by the Legislature:
